ACCUSED BEING TRIED SEPARATEL

Evidence in Suit Against Nellie Davis Finished-Fournies Received $2 When He Took Girl There-Will Go to

The case of the state vs. Nellie Dayis occupied all the day in the criminal superior count at New London, before Judge Burpee, on Monday. The specific charge is harboring and using for immoral purposes a minor female.
The evidence was completed about 3 o'clock and most of the arguments have been made, so that the case will go to the jury today.

The first witness called Tuesday morning was George Green of Bridgeport, who said that he had inherited the property in Norwich occupied by Nellie Davis. He received $60 a month for its use. He had never been in Norwich. Had never seen Nellie Davis and knew nothing of the place. He could not identify her.

Fournier Gives His Version.

Arthur Fournier was next called.

Fournier Gives His Version.

Arthur Fournier was next called. He said the was 23 years of age and had resided in Woonsocket 22 years. He was a shoemaker by trade. He knew Cora Belanger and had been acquainted with her about eight months. He met her in Pawticket and took her to Woonsocket, where she went to his mother's, Burt's lane, and she remained there about three weeks.

Early this year Fournier said he and Cora decided to come to Glasgo, Conn., and they did, staying there about a week. From Glasgo they came to Norwich. Cora first went to Annie Davis', 28 Water street, and later to Nellie Davis', 18 Ferry street.

State Attorney Hull asked Fournier to tell about going to Nellie Davis'. He said that he went there one Saturday morning early in February between the hours of 16 and 11 o'clock.

"I asked her," Fournier said, "if she wanted a girl, and she said, "How old?" and I said that the girl was 21 years old. She said, "Bring her over," and she said, "How much do you want for her?" I teld her I didn't want anything.

She said "All right then." Then I

I returned to the Davis house with Cora. I got $2.
Fournier explained that he asked for the borrow of the $2 on his first visit, but did not receive it until he brought the girl to the house.

I said to Nellie Davis, "Here she is," and she said, "All right, she will be all right here. She will make a good girl." I went to the Davis house one night. Cora was there dressed in a slik wrapper. I stayed about 45 minutes.

Fournier said that the girl returned

Attorney Comstock in life on the cross-examination. Four-nier said that he was married and not divorced. He said he met Cora in a house of ill fame in Pawtucket and that that was his first meeting with her. Later they went to Woonsocket together and said that when Neilie Davis reach that that was his first meeting with her. Later they went to Woonsocket together and she stayed at his mother's house for about three weeks. She paid no board, as Fourner's mother frusted the girl, until she got in Norwich, when she sent the money on to Mrs. Fournier.

Thursday afternoon the baseball team of St. Mary's school will play a practice game with a team captained by Samuel Crowe on the Shetucket by Samuel Crowe on the Shetucket of the Court attendants, interfered with the progress of the court.

The Belanger girl was called after Fournier had finished his testimony. She said that she was 17 years of age and that her home was in Central Falls. Her mother died about nine months ago, she then going to reside with her married sister, Mrs. Rosa La-

After a short while she went down into Pawtucket to get a job, having finished work as a spinner in the Sprague cotton mills, Central Falls. In Railroad street, Pawtucket, she met Fournier.

"He asked me," she said, 'to go with him to Woonsocket, and we went there to the Palm hotel. I stayed there one night with Fournier. Then I went to his mother's, where I stayed about

Then he brought me to haver street and I stayed there about five months. Court was adjourned until this morning. I was in a house of ill fame. I gave the money I carned to Fournier. From the River street house I went to his Mahoney, charged with the same ofbrother's, and I stayed there about fense, is due to be heard next.

At 12 o'clock court took a short recess. Miss Davis had been seized by a nervous fit whife the Belanger girl was testifying and Dr. Harriman attended her.

Miss Davis evidently wanted some air, for when the recess was taken she asked her attorney. Charles W. Comstock, if she could go out. Attorney Comstock thought that she meant out of the courtroom and he replied "Yes."

Then the Davis woman, accompanied by another woman, went down

Then the Davis woman, accompanied by another woman, went down State street. After about ten minutes' recess Judge Burpee ordered court in session again. It was not noticed that the accused was not "among those present," and the state was ready to proceed with the examination of the Belanger girl, when Clerk Parsons informed the court that the accused was not in the courtroom.

not in the courtroom.

Sheriff Brown was directed by Judge Burpee to find Miss Davis and bring her into court. A search was made of the adjoining rooms, but she was not in any of them, and it was learned that she had gone down

Attorney Comstock endeavored to get hold of his client, but he could not find her. Finally he returned to the court room and informed the court that he had told his client that she could go out, meaning out of the court room, but that she had thought evidently that he meant out of the court house, for she had gone down into State street. He suggested taking the noon recess at that time, 12.30, instead of 1 o'clock, and coming in again at 1.30, instead of at 2.

Judge Burpee decided to do this, and said that when Nellie Davis returned she was to be kept in the custody of the shering during the trial.

The Davis woman is out under $2,500 bonds, so she was not supposed to be watched by the sherings. Her roaming, however, though no fault of the court attendants, interfered with the progress of the court.

Afternoon Session.

At the afternoon session there was Attorney Comstock endeavored to stand.

Frankle Leon, the housekeeper at the place testified that the girl was allowed to stay there as an accommodation and that she was there only from Saturday until Monday. She did not earn any money there, but came down to meals with the others and then went back to her room. The witness refused to answer many questions and when asked why, said she did not want to incriminate herself.

John H. Barnes, deputy judge of the Norwich city court, was called to testify about what the Belanger girl testified to in the city court here, She said she wanted to get away as she was not making money enough.

Arguments by Burrows and Comstock were heard and State Attorney
